

In the Abstract:

Please ADD the Abstract attached hereto as a separate page.

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a process for recycling fines produced during the production of powder coatings comprising the steps of heating the fines for a sufficient time and a sufficient temperature such that a reusable product is obtained, cooling such product, crushing the cooled product to produce particles of a desired particle size; and removing any particles which are not of desired particle size.